

AccentHansen
steel door specialists
www.accenthansen.co.uk

AccentHansen appoint Production Manager

Business growth necessitates larger Production team

30 April 2009 – AccentHansen, one of the UKs market-leading steel and glazed door manufacturers and installers, have responded to the growth of its business by employing a specialist production manager. The role, previously under the remit of the Technical Manager, has been created in response to the continued success of the business and the desire to increase the focus in each of these areas.

The role has been filled by Dave Mitchell who has previously worked in a number of management roles within the Hansen Group and more recently at Fendor Ltd where he held the position of Production Director for over two years.

Mark Mallen, Managing Director, AccentHansen, said “The addition of Dave to our team means we can respond to the demands of the growing business more quickly, while Allin Buckley, our Technical Director concentrates on the technical development of our products. We are confident that Dave’s experience and focus in production will ensure our customers continue to receive outstanding service as well as products they can trust.”

For more information on AccentHansen’s full range of doors go to: www.accenthansen.co.uk